Front Grilles

normally located between the vehicle headlights and attached to them. It was essentially just another car part, serving to identify the vehicle brand and with a basically simple appearance. During this period, MAIER was a range 1 supplier, i.e. a direct supplier to vehicle manufacturers such as Toyota, PSA, etc. (Examples: Citroën Xsara, Citroën Berlingo, BMW series 3, Jaguar Xtype).

Over the next 5 years, 2005 - 2010, the era of modularisation, the trend was for these grilles to form part of the bumper unit, and lower front grilles were also introduced. The grille unit consisted of 3 parts - support, trims and emblem. During this period the brands worked with equippers supplying vehicle fronts, and MAIER therefore became a range 2 supplier for equippers such as Plastic Omnium, Faurecia or Peguform (Examples: Peugeot 308, Peugeot 207, Megane, Jaguar XF, etc.)
